

SHUFFLE
(Armenia)

The SHUFFLE is a typical example of American-Armenian dance, and one of the oldest. It was created in 1951 in the Merrimack Valley north of Boston. The SHUFFLE quickly established itself among all American-Armenian communities, and is still popular today. The name is derived from the "shuffle" or two-step (R-together-R, L-together-L) that begins the dance. The SHUFFLE is ubiquitous, and has many different regional names, including the glide, slide, two-step, 6/8 and others. Most contemporary dances have no 'official' name.

The SHUFFLE is the most important new dance among American-Armenians, and is only exceeded in popularity by the basic BAR. Unlike most contemporary dances, the SHUFFLE is not strenuous and can be done by young and old alike.
